Petition for the Declaration of Nullity

*You are encouraged to complete this form with the help of a priest or deacon. This form must be filled out completely (please print or type), including information regarding the Respondent. The Respondent will be sent a copy of the essay portion of this petition, unless the Petitioner demonstrates a grave reason (e.g. a restraining order) why it should not be sent. It is the duty of the Petitioner to provide a viable address for the Respondent, and providing a wrong or incomplete address for the Respondent will cause serious delays in the case. If the Respondent is truly impossible to locate, please attach a record of your attempts to locate him/her.

WITNESSES

In order to prove the nullity of a marriage, you must provide witnesses who will attest to the facts alleged about the proposed ground(s) of nullity. The best witnesses are those who have firsthand knowledge of you (the Petitioner) and/or the other party (the Respondent). Witnesses should be able to speak knowledgeably and honestly about the Petitioner's and/or the Respondent's upbringing, the courtship, and/or problems encountered in the marriage. The focus of these proceedings is the factors that were present at the moment of consent. You must contact your witnesses in advance (prior to submitting their names) and secure their permission for the Tribunal to send them an in-depth questionnaire. Naming witnesses who have not agreed to participate can cause indefinite delays.

- Directions: a) Name: Indicate how each person is to be addressed, i.e., the title of Mr., Mrs., Miss, Ms., Dr., etc.
b) Postal address: This must be complete.
c) Relationship: e.g.: my parents, my ex-spouse's sister, friend with both of us since high school, etc.
d) Contact: Please indicate whether the questionnaire should be sent by mail or e-mail.

I present the following as witnesses in my petition for an annulment.

TIPS FOR SELECTING GOOD WITNESSES

The best witnesses are those who have firsthand knowledge of one or both of the parties in the time-period leading up to the wedding (upbringing, courtship, engagement, time of consent, and/or in the early part of the marriage).

WHO (do I choose)?

- Family (e.g., parents, siblings, aunts/uncles, godparents, cousins, former spouse's family, etc.)
- Friends
- Schoolmates
- Members of the wedding party (i.e., best man, maid of honor, bridesmaids, groomsmen, etc.)
- Co-workers/colleagues
- Your counselor(s)/therapist(s) (if appropriate to the case)
- Your doctor (only if relevant to the grounds set in the case)

WHO (not to choose)?

- Deceased persons are incapable of offering testimony.
- Children born of the marriage cannot speak about the courtship and time of consent.
- Current spouse or current spouse's family
- Family members of friends who are significantly impaired by dementia or mental illness
- Priests, in most instances, are prevented from discussing substantive information gained during ministry.

WHAT (do they need to do)?

- Witnesses need to share their unvarnished perspective about the marriage in question, particularly the behaviors and outlooks of the parties leading up to the wedding. This process is not about making one party look good and the other party look bad. Witnesses should share all that they know ("the whole truth"/"the complete picture"), even if they don't think it will show you in the best light. The fuller picture a witness can provide, the better the Tribunal can reach an accurate and just decision in a timely manner.

WHEN (must I have known them)?

The best witnesses are ones who can speak about one or both of the following:

- the background of the Petitioner and/or Respondent
- the courtship/dating period, the time of consent (wedding), and the early part of the marriage

WHERE (do I look)?

- You must make a concerted effort to find witnesses who can corroborate and complete the story. Often we lose touch with people who at one time were significant in our lives, but technology offers a way of finding and reconnecting with people. Try finding and reaching out to a potential witness by using social media (e.g., Facebook), networking sites (e.g., LinkedIn), search engines (e.g., Google), alumni association directories, free websites (e.g., whitepages.com or peoplefinders.com), or paid public records websites (e.g., intelius.com, beenverified.com, standard.netdetective.net or spokeo.com).

WHY (do I need them)?

- The burden of proof rests with the Petitioner, who must show that this marriage was fatally flawed from the beginning. Witnesses corroborate (help to establish) the alleged facts and complete the picture with their insights. If for serious reasons three substantive witnesses cannot be found, then you must name character references who can attest to your honesty. Character references need only to testify to your upstanding character; they do not need to have known you at the time of the wedding. Other sources of evidence such as correspondence (e.g., "love letters" or notes), diaries or journals, and/or legal documents (e.g., police reports, copy of retraining orders, etc.) can also be helpful.

HOW (does the Tribunal contact them)?

- After you have provided contact information for each of your witnesses, the Tribunal will send each witness a questionnaire either by postal mail or by e-mail. If follow-up questions are needed, the Tribunal may contact the witness by telephone. It is important that the witnesses complete their questionnaire independently and share their unvarnished perspective.
- Please do not "coach" your witnesses. Give your witnesses the freedom to share their impressions and tell what they remember observing in their own words.
